ESAF solar energy initiatives creating waves

Solar energy separates a group of slum dwellers in Chikli near Kalamna from others of their ilk. For those who strive for a living with bare necessities this is a grand achievement. It all started with a meaningful intervention in their lives by ESAF Microfinance along with CHF International. Now they boast of four solar powered light posts, solar lamps and solar study light.

"Fire related incidents had been reduced considerably since ESAF and CHF started this initiative in 2009" says George K. John, General Manager, Central Zone, ESAF. Earlier, the slum had witnessed three kerosene-lamp incidents and the residents spent around Rs 300 per month for lighting their hutments. "They now understand the importance of solar energy and are willing to spend Rs 1600/- for solar panels and batteries" added George K. John.

Out of the 200 families in the region 129 families are benefiting from the program. A closer observation shows that academic results of school children have improved considerably. The solar lamps and study lamps are charged at the Community charging centre in the area. This centre can charge up to 25 -30 lamps simultaneously.

Nair, Fair Trade Forum India Vice President and Director ESAF-ILO Project, this initiative provides a unique opportunity for ESAF sangam members to expand their market to metro cities like Chennai and Bangalore. He added that for the trading members this was an opportunity for co-operation, as the dealers could mutually sell the products at an agreeable rate and could enjoy the benefits of umbrella branding. Apart from ESAF, Keystone Foundation based in Kottagiri, ANTS based in Andhra Pradesh and Sasha based in Calcutta are the other key players behind the initiative.
